TO PRESERVE

THE SABBATH.

An effort is to be made to establish a permanent organization in New Jersey for the preservation of the American Sabbath. The first public movement will be at a convention to be held in the State Street Methodist Episcopal Church at Trenton, on Thursday of next week.

The object of the convention as stated in the call is "to enable the friends of the Lord's day to form a permanent State organization with an auxiliary in every county, that the entire State may join in preventing the repeal of our Sunday law and in preserving the Rest Day from desecration."

There will be sessions morning, afternoon and night and everyone interested in the object of the association is urged to be present. There will be a number of addresses by persons who are taking an especial interest in the work, among them being Rev. Holmes F. Gravatt, and Rev. Alfred Wagg, Presiding Elder of the Trenton District.

Speculation About Licenses.

The two applications for licenses to keep inns and taverns in Bridgeton, now before City Council, are causing a good deal of speculation and considerable discussion. The applications were a surprise generally to the public. No one had stopped to think over the complexity of the present Council on the license issue, it being regarded as certain that the question of license would not be touched upon until the matter was taken up under the charter in November, and voted upon by the people.

There are those who say that there are in the membership of City Council six men who are avowed license men. Some of those who make this statement follow it with the suggestion that it will be possible to get two more votes.

On the other hand there are those who are sure that there are not in Council more than four men who would under any circumstances vote for licensed hotels here, while still other do not think the applications will receive the votes of more than three, if they do any.

From information now obtainable it is pretty safe to say that the applications under no circumstances can muster six votes, and that there will be no license granted by this Council.

A CURIOUS CURRENCY

Notes That Were Issued by the Mormons In Early Days.

MONEY BASED ON GOLD DUST

An Issue of Scrip in Denver Which Was Unique in the Financial History of America—Some of It Redeemed in Gold When Gold Was Above Par.

The need of a circulating medium brought into existence a curious currency among the Mormons of Utah in the early days. They had a fairly abundant supply of gold dust, but no form of money. When taxes were collected, for instance, they were paid in gold dust. The tax collector was often unable to give fractional change and had to issue due bills for small amounts.

Finally so great became the need for a convenient circulating medium that the suggestion was made by some of the leaders that the circulation of the Kirtland notes be authorized, the community to stand sponsor for them. And this was adopted.

The Kirtland notes were the product of a bank of the wildcat species which was in operation in 1837 at Kirtland, O., where under the leadership of Joseph Smith the Mormons had a settlement. The institution was known as the Kirtland Safety Society bank and issued notes in the denominations of $1, $2, $5 and $10.

Fully $50,000 worth of these notes were said to have been issued. Then the bank failed, not having at the time of suspension more than $5,000 with which to redeem its issue. The result was that the notes became absolutely worthless. Many of the Mormons kept their notes, regarding them as curiosities, while others retained possession of them in the faith that the prediction of Smith would one day be realized, he being reputed to have said that the notes one day would be as good as gold.

The action of the Mormon leaders in Utah in 1849 made this prediction come true, for the Kirtland notes at once went into general circulation and were placed on a par with gold. Each and every one of them was redeemed at the Mormon headquarters in gold dust, of which there seemed to be a greater supply than of representations of money.

There were two issues of paper money or scrip in Denver, which were redeemed in gold. Some of them were redeemed at a time when gold was at a premium and so deserve to be ranked among the curious currency representations of which this country has seen many examples.

In September, 1861, the firm of C. A. Cook & Co. of Denver issued notes of the denominations of 10, 25 and 50 cents and $1. This firm conducted a large general merchandise business, in the course of which they handled great quantities of gold dust, the latter at the time being the only circulating medium in Colorado or Kansas territory, as it was then called.

Later the firm dropped the merchandise business and took up banking. Great need was felt for fractional currency which would be worth as much as gold and at the same time save the inconvenience of handling the gold dust. To supply the prevailing need, Cook & Co. issued these notes, which were all finely engraved on steel and bore the promise of the firm to be redeemed in gold dust.

The notes were snapped up by everybody, but more particularly the merchants, and it was not long before Cook & Co.'s notes were in general circulation in Denver and the contiguous mountain regions. They were promptly redeemed whenever presented and, being redeemable in gold dust, were preferred to the regular United States currency. They were the smallest gold notes ever issued.

Some time after the banking house caught fire and was entirely consumed. At great risk the senior member of the firm entered the burning building and rescued the stock of gold dust, which amounted to something like $83,000.

The following day the holders of the notes, fearing a possible loss on account of the fire, asked for the redemption of their notes, which was granted in every instance. But this seeming want of confidence so provoked Mr. Cook that after the last note had been redeemed and canceled he determined never to issue another, and thus ended an issue unique in America's financial history. It is not probable that a specimen of this interesting series of notes is in existence today.—Washington Post.

Fickle Fortune.

The reverses of fortune are well illustrated among the descendants of the old French nobility.

According to M. Lescure, a grandson of that same Marquis d'Hauterocque who chivalrously requested the English troops at the battle of Fontenoy to "fire first" ended his days as a common policeman.

One of the noble family of Babou de la Boardaisiere is now a washerwoman.

Representatives of other noble families equally famous in their time are, or were, according to the same authority, occupying the humble places of gamekeeper, carpenter's apprentice, house painter, cab driver, miller's assistant, innkeeper, conductor of an omnibus, box opener at a theater, gas man, bathing man, maker of mouse traps, chorus singer at the opera and woodman, while one who is a great-grand-cousin of the illustrious Cardinal de Retz unites in his own person the lowly offices of gravedigger and village fiddler.—London Tit-Bits.
